

"West River is a great place to practice. You are providing high-quality healthcare to an appreciative rural population in need of access. You'll have several colleagues for support, and your consultants treat you with respect and involve you in ongoing patient management. You're able to practice advanced medicine in a rural setting with a supportive board and administration. This is a great place to be if you're tired of the corporate medicine treadmill." Joshua Ranum, M.D., Internal Medicine Physician at West River Health Services and the North Dakota Medical Association President.
